

Our Partnership...

Robert and Milly Kikomeko

Robert and Milly started Maisha Africa Foundation in 2012. Maisha is a non-profit, non-denominational, non-political and non-government organization. It is located in the district of Kagadi in Uganda. Robert (shown to the left) is the founder and executive director with his wife, Milly, who is the director of legal, women and children affairs.

It started as an idea of Robert's to be a place where they could provide clothes, food, help pay for medical bills, and supplies until they realized that those things were only temporary. They wanted to provide something that would impact future generations.

Milly met Robert at University in 2012 where he shared his idea with her to start a school. Milly grew up in a poor family of 8 siblings. She was blessed with an education due to the sponsorships of various individuals. She had to drop out several time due to lack of funds but she eventually finished. Upon realizing the impact an education had on her future, she wanted to give other children that same opportunity so she was quickly on board with Robert's idea. The school started two years later in 2014 and has been running strong ever since thanks to the faithfulness of God.

In addition to the school, Robert and Milly have accomplished other projects in the community such as building chicken coups for single mothers. After building the coup, they donate a large batch of chicks and teach these women how to raise them and procure them. The plans for Maisha don't stop there. In the future, Robert and Milly would like to accomplish more projects such as starting an agriculture program to teach families how to grow food and installing an AFRIpad distribution center which enables girls to stay in school after puberty.

FUSION Leadership Group

The executive leadership team of FUSION is made up of Amy Travis (middle), who started FUSION in 2017, Connie Geier (right) and Valerie Donnelly (left). The goal of this organization is to provide leadership training and resources to under-served populations.

This three-generation trio visited Maisha Orphanage in November 2018 and was blown away by the work that Robert and Milly are doing in Uganda. They couldn't help but to jump on board and assist in any way they could!

Amy's role in this partnership with Maisha consists of organizing the trips and supplies they take there and the projects complete while there.

Valerie's role consists of managing the monthly sponsorships. She is your point of contact when sending your payment and she makes sure that every dollar in goes directly to Maisha.

Connie is the bridge between you and your sponsored child. She makes sure your letters and packages make it into your child's hands. She will also be the one updating you with how he/she is doing and will provide pictures as your sponsored child grows up!

From all of us at Maisha and FUSION, we thank you so much for your investment into the future generations of Uganda! We will be praying for blessings on you and your family. God bless!
